

LICENSURE

In order to qualify for practice in the United States, pharmacy graduates must successfully pass licensure examinations and complete the clinical and practical experience hours required by the state in which licensure is sought.