

FRENCH AND FRANCOPHONE STUDIES MINOR

Concentration but are not eligible for the French and Francophone Studies minor.

The French and Francophone Studies Minor offers students the opportunity to explore the broad interdisciplinary field of the language and cultures of the French-speaking world. The Minor, designed to complement the students' areas of specialization, will allow them to develop the linguistic and cultural proficiency necessary to function in regions where French is spoken. In addition to obtaining a greater mastery of all language skills (reading, writing, comprehension, speaking), students will acquire and apply terminology specific to their field. Moreover, this program will help students understand the geopolitical significance of the Francophone world. Thus, the Minor will not only develop students' analytical skills, but also teach them to recognize, negotiate, and appreciate cultural difference.

Minor in French and Francophone Studies Requirements: 18 Credits*

A minimum of 12 credits toward the minor must be taken at Creighton. Credits taken as part of a Faculty Lead Program Away (FLPA) count as Creighton courses.
